ABOUT THE SHOW

Apollyon is a science fiction podcast about a post-pandemic world.

It is the third podcast series from Observer Pictures, an independent short film and podcast production company based in Nashville, Tenn. founded by Faith McQuinn.

It's the 22nd century. The Apollyon virus has torn through the world and wiped out more than half of the population.

Now, a majority of the world is governed by the ICRS, the International Conglomerate of Research Scientists, a group of politicians and scientists working to keep the world as safe as possible. That safety means restricted travel and quarantined cities.

Dr. Theo Ramsey works in the American ICRS headquarters in Atlanta. She and her research partner, Dr. Gabriel Larson, have just discovered an effective vaccine for AVS, but the stakes to get the vaccine to the public are higher than she ever imagined.

Faith McQuinn
writer/director

Faith has been a writer and video editor for since 2005. She spent nine years teaching film production and screenwriting at the college level. After years of helping other people bring their stories to life, she decided to start Observer Pictures with the intent of making a new project every year. To date, Observer has completed four short films, two fiction podcast series, and three stand-alone podcasts.

Amanda Lorraine
producer/assistant director

Amanda has been intrigued with storytelling ever since her mom and Nanny introduced her to "stories" (aka soap operas). Through college and after, she's been on the producing team for multiple short films. She met Faith in college where their teacher-student relationship transformed into a creative duo when she joined Observer Pictures.

PRESS & REVIEWS

"Apollyon is, yes, about pandemics, virology, and politics, but more than that and true to McQuinn's form, it's about relationships both familial and romantic, parenthood in a time of crises, and deeply emotional turmoil. The pilot episode is everything I could hope for from a story dealing with a pandemic, even if it was written before COVID-19: it is sensitive and blunt in turn, hopeful even in the face of death and infection, and exceedingly well-researched with two scientific consultants."

-Elena Fernández Collins, Audio Dramatic

"I'm listening to Apollyon and I really can't get over the sheer creative RANGE that Faith McQuinn has as a writer."

-Ella Watts, Twitter Review
